WOMEN OF COLOR IN TECH

Kickstart or Advance Your Career with In-Demand Tech Skills

Through a grant from JPMorgan Chase and support from Google, the Cincinnati Regional Chamber and the Workforce Innovation Center are partnering with the Urban League of Greater Southwestern Ohio, Community Action Agency – Cincinnati | Hamilton County (CAA), Brighton Center, and the Gaskins Foundation to offer Women of Color in Tech. The program helps women of color in the Cincinnati region prepare for new careers in high-growth fields by offering Google Career Certificates paired with wrap-around support.

HOW IT WORKS

The Women of Color in Tech partners offer free 12-week training programs to prepare women for roles in cybersecurity, data analytics, digital marketing & e-commerce, IT support, project management, and UX design. The programs are designed to meet participants where they are with flexible, virtual and in-person options – as well as childcare. Once complete, partners will facilitate employer interviews tailored to each participant to help them secure a job that best fits their new skillset, personal needs, and career aspirations.

To complete their certification, participants have four facilitator organizations to choose from:
· Brighton Center
· Community Action Agency – Cincinnati | Hamilton County (CAA)
· The Gaskins Foundation
· Urban League of Greater Southwestern Ohio

FREE INDUSTRY-RECOGNIZED CERTIFICATIONS FROM FOUR TRUSTED COMMUNITY PARTNERS

Women of Color in Tech offers completely free training of six industry-recognized certifications. Participants can choose from:
• IT Support
• Data Analytics
• Cybersecurity
• Digital Marketing & E-Commerce
• Project Management
• UX Design

Each facilitator organization will provide:
· Virtual, in-person, or hybrid class options
· Additional resources like financial and career coaching, resumé creation, and mock interviewing
· Graduation celebration and a Google badge to display on LinkedIn and resumé
· Interview opportunities with employers hiring people with these skills and certifications
